Care

AT CHRISTMAS

We recognise the importance of food at Christmas so we want to help you create delicious meals and snacks for your residents over the festive period.

We also understand the diverse nutritional needs within care, and that you cater for a variety of different conditions like malnutrition, dementia and dysphagia. Whether you're looking for nutrient-dense snacks, cutlery-free options or a texture modified Christmas dinner, we're here to help!

Nutrient-dense

Residents at risk of malnutrition will usually need a nutrient rich diet which means choosing foods that contain energy, protein, vitamins, minerals and/or fibre. Offering nutrient dense snacks in between meals is a great help too. Try chef Danny's mincemeat, cranberry and white chocolate bites, they contain small amounts of protein, calcium, vitamin C, folate and fibre.

Cutlery-free dining

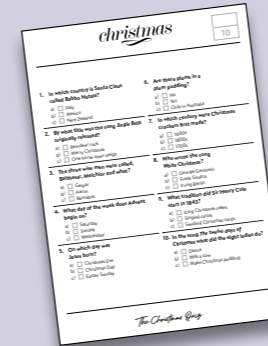

Residents living with dementia may find it more difficult to remember how to eat with cutlery, so meal options where cutlery isn't needed is essential. Cutlery-free foods should be easy to pick up and eat with your hands, and just as nutritious as standard menu options.

Christmas dinner for all

Not every resident can enjoy traditionally presented Christmas fayre, we've got that covered too. Chef Oli has created a video to help guide you through the steps needed to create a delicious IDDSI level 4 Christmas dinner for residents with dysphagia.

Luxurious, rich Christmas puddings and delicate, sweet filled mince pies are the perfect examples. Whether that's infused with, among other alcohols, cider, brandy, and sherry, or a gluten-free, alcohol-free or vegan friendly alternative, no menu is complete without them.
